

Alex's Story

Alex graduated with a BSc in Information Technology from Taita Taveta University College in Kenya in 2017. Rafiki Thabo started supporting him in 2013.

Alex's mum passed away in 2006 so his dad raised him and his three siblings alone. His father took care of the children as well as working hard to keep them in school. However, the school fees often fell short and Alex and his younger sister were sent home from school several times as their fees had not been paid in full. Eventually, after various ups and downs, Alex managed to complete high school but he knew there was little chance of going to university as the family had so little money. His heart broke every day as he watched his peers going off to college and he longed for an opportunity to be able to join them one day.

Image copyright Adam Dickens

Rafiki Thabo Foundation stepped in and were able to make Alex's dream come true. Even better, with Rafiki Thabo Foundation providing Alex's fees, his father was able to afford to educate Alex's younger sister.

“Rafiki Thabo has revived the hope that had died in me and my family.... It is my belief and prayer that one day I will also change someone's life like you changed mine.”

Alex now has a job and knows that he has better prospects in the firm because of the qualifications he possesses.

Alex's graduation day

To support Alex cost Rafiki Thabo Foundation £1400 per year